AUTOMATIC RIFLE MARKING

Notwithstanding all the ingenuity that has been exercised and all the precautions that have been taken against accidents to those whose duty it is to mark the results at rifle contests, it does happen occasionally that unlucky shots are made and that the marker falls a victim to some irregularity of his own or of the marksman. An invention has just been brought before the public which seems likely in future to dispense with he marker altogether. The idea is somewhat milar to those of the small signals in the boxes of the railway switchmen, which being electrically connected with distant signal posts not simultaneously with them, and thus show at a glance their position. In a similar manner the distant targets are connected with smaller representations at the firing point. The latter are marked off into four sections by two lines crossing at right angles in the centre of a number of concentrio rings. Every ring has a small hole in it in each of the four sections, and when a bullet strikes any point of the distant target a number appears in the hole pierced in the corresponding disc at the firing point. It does. of course, sometimes happen that a shot is lodged on the line which separates two rings in a target, or rather, at the line where two rings are in contiguity. The inventor has provided for this contingency by arranging that a shot thus falling between the two shall call un a number in both the rings on the dial at home. Thus the dangerous duty of marking will probably henceforth be done by the bullet itself. The un fortunate thing is that these intricate mechanical appliances, however, perfect in theory, are ant to break down in practice most lamentably. If we mistake not, there have been many previous attempts of a more or less ingenious sort to solve the problem of automatic marking at ride ranges. But when it came to test the inventions by rapid firing, the mechanism got out of gear, and human instrumentality had to be again resorted to. We hope better things of the new scheme, but until it has undergone a practical experiment on an exhaustive scale, judgment should be suspended as to its intrinsic merits. - Globe:

The attention of owners, agents, and charterers of steamers is drawn to the provisions of The Post Office Ordinance, 1876, which comes into force on the 23rd instant. Under the old Ordinanco no notice was required of the departure of a vessel if not advertised, nor of departures for Canton or Macao. Notice is now required of any departure, though with regard to sailing ships, the old rule will practically remain in force, that notice need not be sent unless asked for. Section XXV. requires that the first notice be sent to the Post Office.

In the case of steamers plying regularly or on fixed days, notice of any change in the day or hour will be sufficient. Stamped correspondence may still be cent on board any vessel after the Mail is closed at the Post Office.

The Postmaster-General takes this opportunity of calling the attention of firms to the fact that formerly carried on at No. 50, BONHAM any such words as Despatches will close at 11 per week during which the practice continued.

Made out on a printed form which is supplied Through at Shanghai, where a fixed dollar rate for drawing on the United Kingdom is in force. Local Orders on Shanghal are drawn at 2 per cent. premium
